EASTERN.

A fire at Northeast, Pa., raged for several hours, destroying thirty stores, the losses aggregating $400,000. A building on Beach street, Boston, occupied by several manufacturers, was swept away by flames, and two firemen were burned to death. The loss of property was $70,000.

The remains of Lieut. Kinsbury, of the Greely expedition, were disinterred at Rochester by friends and physicians, and it was found that the body had been mutilated. The surmise is that the missing portions had been devoured by the starving explorers.

Lieut. Greely was officially welcomed to his old home, Newburyport, Mass., by a procession and reception. At the grand stand Mayor Johnson welcomed Greely, the latter replying in a fitting manner. Gov. Robinson welcomed the explorer on behalf of Massachusetts, and the exercises closed by the band playing "Home Again" and "Hail to the Chief." Dr. Clayborne states that all the survivors will soon be in perfect health, but under strict orders from Secretary Chandler no interviews are allowed.

New York telegram: "Third Officer Kelly, of the steamer Bear, says the reports of eating the flesh of Lieut. Kinsbury and Private Henry were true, as the survivors, when brought on board, were all but delirious, and admitted that they had to eat the dead bodies to preserve their own lives. The cook of the Bear said that all the survivors said they had to eat the flesh of the dead, as all their food, except a little leather or seal skin, had given out. All the men on board the Bear knew that the bodies had been eaten, but were told not to speak about it when they got into port."

In attempting to lower their records at Belmont Park, Philadelphia, Jay-Eye-See made the mile in 2:10 3/4 and Phyllis in 2:14 3/4.

WESTERN.

The Wall Street Bank of New York closed its doors on account of the loss of $200,000 or more through loans on insufficient collaterals, for which Cashier Dickinson is blamed. It recently stepped out of the national banking system. The teller has for some time been under indictment for the overcertification of checks. The concern holds $1,250,000 in deposits.

It is probable that the window-glass factories at Pittsburgh, Pa., will extend the usual period of suspension (two months) this year. They had agreed to open the 1st of September, but prices are so low that it is deemed advisable not to begin operations until the middle of September or the 1st of October.

The base ball club of Grand Rapids, Mich., standing four games ahead of its rivals in the Northwestern League, having lost $2,500 this season, has disbanded. Five of its members will join the Detroit club.

One portion of the Minnesota State Capitol Building at St. Paul has been pronounced unsafe, and persons prohibited from entering it. The walls are sinking, the plaster has cracked in many places, and the joists are sagging. Efforts are being made to prevent its falling and to put it in a perfectly safe condition.

Three children were burned to death in a barn near Circleville, Ohio. They went to the barn to smoke, and set fire to the structure.

A skiff containing four men capsized opposite Belleair, Ohio, and Walter Tunney and Patrick Dixon were drowned.

In Mayfield Township, near Sycamore, Ill., Louis Taylor, a hired man, shot and killed Florence Mitchell, 17 years old, and then set fire to her clothing. The murderer then went to a creek near by, plunged in, and then shot himself through the heart. The theory is that he made improper advances, was repulsed, and in his rage killed the girl, and then, fearing lynching, he committed suicide.

Near Iowa City, Iowa, two brewers were on trial for violating the liquor law, when the mob, inflamed by whisky, seized the Prosecuting Attorney, stripped him of his clothing, and tarred and feathered him. A constable who interfered was seriously cut. The rioters then went to Iowa City, and the town officers, and attempted to kill the principal prosecuting witness and his brother.

Reports received from various points in Dakota and Minnesota indicate that harvesting is progressing very satisfactorily. The weather is quite favorable. The wheat and rye crops are good. Wheat will yield an average of sixteen bushels per acre, and in some places the yield will be about twenty-five bushels. Rye yields about thirty bushels to the acre. The barley crop is excellent.

Several head of cattle, infected with Texas fever, have been killed by the authorities at Clinton, Ill.

A fire in the eastern part of Cincinnati destroyed the saw-mill of Hinton & Cole, the cattle-sheds of the Miami Road, and ten frame dwellings, the losses aggregating $75,000.

Road reports a surplus of $81,565 by abstaining from the payment of dividends.

A desperate attempt was made by the convicts in the Frankfort (Ky.) Penitentiary to escape. A prisoner named Wolf led the would-be jail-breakers. They struck down the guard, and possessed themselves of firearms, which they used freely. James Cunningham, who is serving a fourteen years' term, rendered effective service in suppressing the outbreak. One prisoner, a murderer named Alsopp, escaped.

A duel at Emory Gap, Tenn., between a cripple named Staples and a drummer from Cleveland named William H. Rogers, resulted in the death of both.

WASHINGTON.

Gen. Hazen was interviewed at Washington concerning the stories of cannibalism in connection with the Greely expedition. Although the reports were somewhat exaggerated, he said, there was no doubt that there is considerable foundation for them. He said that it is not true that Capt. Schley told himself and Secretary Chandler that the survivors had eaten the bodies of their associates; he refused, however, to say that the stories already published were not true. He had heard rumors at Portsmouth that Private Henry had been killed and that the survivors had eaten his body, but declined to give such facts in the case as came within his knowledge. The stories find credence among the army and navy officers, and some of the latter, and even Gen. Hazen, think that cannibalism was almost unavoidable under the circumstances. There is no doubt that there will be a Congressional investigation.

Since Aug. 1 the United States Treasury has lost $2,500,000 in gold, leaving the amount above the reserve point $16,500,000.

POLITICAL.

A Buffalo dispatch says: "A local committee composed of John M. Cowie and fifteen other Independent Republicans of this city have issued an address to the Independent Republicans of the nation giving the result of their investigation into the Cleveland scandal. They say that they have felt it their duty to examine these stories in detail, not to satisfy themselves, but to satisfy others. They say that the general charges of drunkenness and gross immorality which were made against Gov. Cleveland are absolutely false. His reputation for morality has been good. The charge that he has recently taken part in a drunken and licentious debauch in Buffalo on the occasion of a visit here is entirely false. The facts of the Halpin case show that the woman was not seduced and that the allegations respecting her abduction and ill-treatment are entirely false. The circumstances occurred years ago. The woman in question was at that time 30 or 40 years old and had two children."

The Rev. Mr. Ball, of Buffalo, the Baptist clergyman who was partly instrumental in placing the story of Gov. Cleveland's immoralities before the public, has brought suit for libel against the Boston Herald for having published a dispatch which insinuated that he was not a clergyman in good standing with his denomination and other matters derogatory to his character. Grant's present feeble physical condition and to the recent financial troubles in Wall street. The speaker said no one believed Gen. Grant was in the remotest degree personally responsible for the trouble, and said the respect and love he had won on the battle-field would survive long after Wall street was a name held to be synonymous with gambling in gold and credit. Gov. Hubbard, of Minnesota, delivered the address of welcome, to which Gen. Sherman responded. At the banquet speeches were made by Gov. Hubbard of Minnesota, Gen. ## A HORRIBLE STORY.

The Sufferings of the Greely Party in the Frozen North but Half Told.

The Flesh of the Dead Eagerly Devoured by the Famishing Survivors.

[New York special.]

Written documents now in possession of the Navy Department at Washington add to the record of miserable human suffering, already published in connection with the finding of the Greely relief expedition, the most shocking stories of inhumanity and cannibalism. All the facts have been in the possession of Secretary Chandler for nearly three weeks, but so closely have they been guarded, and so strictly have the naval officers and sailors maintained the silence imposed on them, that not even an inkling of the true and horrible condition of affairs has yet reached the public ear. The sufferings and privations of the men in their hut during the long bitter winter of 1884 have not half been told. It has been published that after game gave out early in February they lived principally on seal skins, lichens and shrimps. As a matter of fact they were kept alive on human flesh. When the rescuing party discovered the survivors, "the first duty was to look to the two men who were insensible from cold and privation, even to the point of death. One of them, a German, was wild and delirious. 'Oh,' he shrieked, as the sailors took hold of him to lift him tenderly, 'don't let them shoot me, as they did poor Henry. Must I be killed and eaten, as Henry was? Don't let them do it. Don't do it.'"

The sailors were horrified, but at once reported the man's words to Commander Schley, when the horrible reality was brought out before an investigating committee. Commander Schley instructed two or three gentlemen, among whom was Dr. Ames, the surgeon of the Bear, to make a careful examination and put their conclusions in writing. This was done, and the reports are now in the hands of the Navy Department.

Lieut. Greely was decidedly averse to having the bodies of the buried dead disturbed, but the bodies were dug from their graves. Most of the blankets contained nothing but heaps of white bones, many of them picked clean. By inquiries Commander Schley discovered many of the seventeen men, who are said to have perished from starvation, had been eaten by their famishing comrades. It was the one last resort. It is reported that the only man who escaped the knife were three or four who died of scurvy. The amputated limbs of the men who afterward perished were eagerly devoured as food. Whether the four bodies that were swept out to sea and never recovered would have added further evidence to this story of horrible cannibalism cannot be learned now, though the papers in the possession of the Navy Department give all the particulars as told by the survivors.

Charles B. Henry's death was particularly tragic. Driven to despair by his frightful hunger, Henry saw an opportunity to steal a little more than his share of rations, and he made the attempt. He was found out and shot for his crime. In the published official report, the death of this man is set down as having occurred on June 6. When the body was found his hands and face, though shrunk, were intact and recognizable, but nearly everywhere else the skin had been stripped from him, and the flesh picked from the bones. Even his heart and lungs were eaten by his comrades. The body was in this condition when it was interred last Saturday. The letter his friend, Mr. Robert S. Oberfelder, of Sidney, Neb., is daily looking for, will probably never come to light.

EARTHQUAKES.

Incidents of the Recent Shake-up in the East.

[New York telegram.]

On Sunday during the funeral of Lewis Ingler, Jr., the young man who committed suicide at Amityville, L. I., an extraordinary scene occurred. As the minister was about to kneel in prayer the shock of the earthquake shook the house. A large mirror, which reached from the ceiling to the floor, was cracked in two from the top to the bottom, and the walls of the room were cracked in two places. The flowers were shaken from the coffin and the silver handles on the sides of the casket rattled. The minister and several of the mourners fainted. When the shock was first felt nearly every one in the parlors remained motionless. Then there was a stampede to get outside, and one lady jumped through an open window and spinned her leg so that she had to be carried to her home. The women who fainted were carried outside to the open air. The minister was unable to go on with the service, and the mourners and others remained outside while the pall-bearers re-entered the house and carried the coffin out to the hearse. A broom-handle can be laid into the cracks in the wall.

The earthquake caused the brick chimneys of two houses to fall at East Norwich. The Presbyterian Sunday school at Jamaica had its walls serried by cracks, one to two inches in width, extending from its roof to its foundation. A colored camp-meeting in Fleetwood was broken up by the shock, and all in attendance being on their knees at the time, jumped up shouting, and ran from the woods to their homes.

Mrs. Charles Scheler, of Plainfield, N. J., was so affected by the earthquake that she died in a few hours.
